Long-Term Food Security Future of Agriculture

ADB expands support to food systems transformation

ADB announced plans to expand its initial support of $14 billion to food and nutrition security to $40 billion over 2022-2030. ADB will mobilize an additional $26 billion for 2025-2030—$18.5 billion in direct ADB support for governments, and $7.5 billion in private sector investments.

The assistance will fund a comprehensive program for food systems transformation to help Asia and the Pacific generate diverse and nutritious food, create jobs, reduce environmental impacts, and promote resilient agricultural supply chains. This fund will also support food systems projects that protect, restore, and manage natural capital sustainably across ADB's developing members.
